

2019 AFSA LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

Invest in the development of your organization's future leaders

University of North Carolina
Chapel Hill, North Carolina
July 13-20, 2019

SARAH ALTENHAUS

Associate Program Director, AFSA Leadership Development Program

In today's increasingly complex business world, where the speed of change and rate of innovation of technology continues to multiply, the importance of a leader who understands the current landscape and can successfully lead through change cannot be underestimated.

Consequently, investing in the development of future leaders creates the greatest value for the business.

The AFSA Education Foundation in partnership with the University of North Carolina's Kenan-Flagler Business School offers an outstanding leadership development opportunity. We are pleased to announce that the AFSA Leadership Development Program will be offered on July 13 - 20, 2019.

In recent years, the management development experience has been completely redesigned. The program has been condensed from two weeks to six intensive days in order to accommodate the busy schedules of today's high potential leaders. In the new format, participants immerse themselves in innovative principles of management and leadership through class discussions, case analyses, and computer simulations. Here are some of the highlights of the 2018 Program:

- Learning the responsibilities of leadership, including articulating a vision and communicating the vision with passion and urgency.
- Creating a plan for strategic change and receiving immediate feedback on employee buy-in in the context of a challenging computer simulation.
- Developing an ethical "rule of thumb" for making business decisions quickly and effectively.
- Mastering critical negotiation skills including "principled negotiation," "interest based negotiation," and "win-win" negotiation.
- Building confidence in the ability to make dynamic and persuasive presentations.
- Analyzing strategic decision-making and strategy creation in the context of cases in the financial service industry.
- Experiencing first-hand the dynamics of building trust, collaborating, and creating an effective team.
- Receiving an update on 2018 critical regulatory issues from industry experts.

As a result of these topics, leaders will accumulate applicable tools that will allow them to accelerate change and navigate and thrive in a complex environment in real time. Beyond the classroom, participants have many opportunities to expand their professional networks, benchmark best practices across the industry, and build lasting personal friendships.

The program takes place at the Paul J. Rizzo Conference Center in Chapel Hill, an unparalleled facility for world-class executive development. Set in a 28-acre wooded environment near the University of North Carolina campus, the state of the art complex is a self-contained learning community. Leading-edge instructional technology and expert technical support, and a relaxed retreat setting provide an ideal learning environment for executives. The facility includes a modern residential complex complete with swimming pool, fitness center, and an elegant dining and social center.

We encourage you to invest in the future leadership of your organization and sponsor your best and brightest managers.

Sincerely,

CLASS PRESIDENT’S TESTIMONIAL

“After completing the AFSA Leadership Development Program I gained valuable knowledge in several key areas. From how to successfully create and execute a strategic vision, to mastering the art of negotiation, to building trust and sharpening my leadership presence and communication skills. This program is professional and unmatched by any leadership development program I have attended. The instructors were knowledgeable, engaging, and made the content easy to understand. Whether you are a new or experienced leader, this program will definitely strengthen your ability to optimize your team.

In addition to the content, I was able to expand my professional network, benchmark best practices with other leaders in the financial sector as well as build long lasting friendships. Participants also had the opportunity to interact with multiple CEO’s and other senior leaders in the financial industry.

Professional development is a win-win for both the leaders participating and the teams they oversee. The AFSA Leadership Development Program at the University of North Carolina is a world-class program and a great investment for any organization looking to take their leadership team to the next level.”

MANAGING AND LEADING

Great managers begin by learning to manage themselves effectively. Self-management requires a clear sense of priorities and the discipline to stay focused on those activities that add value to the organization. Beyond self-management, successful managers quickly learn that they cannot do everything themselves. Rather, they must learn to delegate, empower, and build high-performance teams.

While managers are responsible for meeting short-term goals, leaders are expected to be visionaries who see the handwriting on the wall before their competitors even see the wall. Leaders focus on the future, communicate goals with a sense of urgency, shape the culture, and push for change. It is the leader's responsibility to position the organization for long-term success.

Participants will learn to:

- Set priorities and manage time effectively
- Delegate and empower their direct reports
- Build high-performance teams
- Develop and communicate a vision statement
- Help shape a corporate culture
- Position their organizations to gain a competitive advantage

LANGUAGE OF LEADERSHIP: DEVELOPING AND DELIVERING PROFESSIONAL PRESENTATIONS

Leadership requires mastering the art of effective persuasion. Leaders must be able to communicate both within and outside the organization clearly, concisely, and convincingly. Through lecture, discussion, exercises, and practice, this session will help participants refine their presentation skills by covering the following topics:

- Organizing presentations effectively and efficiently
- Designing and integrating PowerPoint slides, notes, and questions into presentations effectively
- Delivering information with confidence

BUSINESS ETHICS

Managers are selected for executive development because they have demonstrated a great potential for leadership. As they rise within the organizational ranks, one of the inevitable challenges that they will face is the increasingly complex set of decisions that include a mix of management, finance, accounting, marketing, and other issues. Inevitably included within these decisions will be a huge component of ethical issues that test the fundamental principles of the company and the individuals within the company. Moreover, leaders often have to make decisions on the fly, with little time to reflect on ethical nuances.

To meet this challenge, this session will focus on the following points:

- Addressing when an issue becomes one that requires ethical decision-making skills
- Assessing which ethical theories make the most sense for business decision-makers
- Analyzing how one makes ethical business decisions
- Analyzing a real-life business case that carries major ethical concerns
- Developing an ethical "rule of thumb" for making ethical decisions quickly and effectively

NEGOTIATIONS

Most business executives lack confidence as negotiators. When queried, they often indicate a dislike of negotiating because they dislike conflict, hate confrontation, don't think quickly on their feet, and cave too quickly to the other side's demands. This session will address these fears and misgivings with an explanation of what actually works in negotiation and what rarely works. The primary focus will be on learning the techniques of what is often referred to as "principled negotiation," "interest-based negotiation," or simply "win-win" negotiation. We explore how these techniques are usually superior to more attack-oriented negotiation approaches, but we also learn how to deal with those who approach bargaining with a win-lose attitude.

Because negotiation is a skill, rather than simply a body of knowledge, we do a substantial amount of learning by engaging in negotiation exercises and address the following topics:

- Why good negotiators think they are ineffective
- Attributes of good negotiators as shown by studies
- Techniques for principled negotiation, interest-based negotiation, also known as win-win negotiation
- How to open and conduct a negotiation
- Tips and techniques of great negotiators
- Reflections on negotiations conducted during the day's session

STRATEGIC THINKING

Strategy demands vigilance, an understanding of the environment, and a view to the future. To manage strategy, think about CLASS – Culture, Leadership, Alignment, Structure, and Systems.

Participants will examine two case studies of firms in the financial services industry and consider the strategic decisions made by top executives and the consequences of these decisions for various stakeholders, including customers, stockholders, employees, and regulators.

LEADING AND MANAGING CHANGE: EXPERIENCE CHANGE SIMULATION

Every executive has been a part of organizational change, both as a leader and as a participant. Yet, many change efforts don't produce the desired effect that those leading the change effort wished for. This common issue has resulted in significant research with practical implications for managers and executives who want to increase the likelihood of the change initiative having lasting results.

This session will draw on both the research and experience of the executives on ineffective and effective strategies for change management and overcoming resistance to change. A key component of this session will be a simulation where participants will work in teams as consultants for a technology company that has declining revenues and profits. Each team's goal is to navigate the change process to enhance the company's chances for improved competitiveness and survival. After the simulation, participants will tie theory to practice, and leave with practical tools and strategies to add to their "management database."

Key concepts include:

- Developing a structured approach to diagnosing, planning, and implementing organizational change
- Analyzing and discussing practical tools to help executives lead change
- Test thinking on managing change, using a change management simulation
- Applying lessons on managing and leading change that apply to each executive's area of responsibility
- Discussing strategies for leading change that draw from both research and experience
- Creating effective strategies to manage resistance to change
